Accompanying persons on the ward

Up to the age of 6 years we try to provide a bed for an accompanying person. This is important for the healing process and the emotional security of the child.

If the child is older than 6 years a bed for an accompanying person can only be offered depending on availability (bed capacity and number of patients).

If a bed is not available for an accompanying person, parents can stay in the room with their child as long as possible.

For overnight stays you can find further information of accommodation possibilities close to our hospital on our homepage.
